Generali has further strengthened its diversified and resilient business model supported by solid contributions from Life, P&C and Asset & Wealth Management.

In Life, the Group has successfully transformed its business mix over the past decade, increasing the share of capital-light reserves to around 75%, improving earnings sustainability and predictability. The Life operating result is expected to grow at a 5% CAGR between 2024 and 2026, while the New Business Margin at FY2026 is expected to be at around 5.9%. Commercial momentum remains strong, with Generali ranking among Europe's leaders in net inflows, which reached €25.2 billion cumulated in FY2025-9M2026.

In P&C, strong technical profitability, disciplined underwriting and effective claims management have driven profitable growth with GWP CAGR of 6.6% expected at FY2026 for the first two years of the plan. Sharpened risk selection and improved pricing models have contributed to the expected P&C operating result CAGR of 12% between FY2024 and FY2026.

Asset & Wealth Management has become an increasingly important driver of earnings diversification, supported by Generali Investments' broad capabilities and the successful integration of Conning Holdings Limited and its affiliates. Combining insurance and third-party asset management expertise, the business generates a growing source of fee-based revenues. Third-party clients account for 44% of the Group's total assets under management at 9M2026. Banca Generali confirms its healthy development thanks to its strong organic growth and increasingly benefitting from the Intermonte integration and insurbanking initiatives.

Progress on strategic priorities

EXCELLENCE IN CUSTOMER RELATIONSHIPS

Generali maintains its leading position among European peers in Relationship Net Promoter Score, with a customer retention rate of 89%[3], while increasingly empowering its advisors with generative AI and state-of-the-art digital tools.

EXCELLENCE IN CORE CAPABILITIES

The Group is fully on track to meet or exceed its operating result CAGR targets in both Life and P&C, while strengthening synergies between Asset Management and Life, through a growing share of unit-linked premiums and institutional mandates managed internally.

Looking ahead, Generali is accelerating three main growth engines: hybrid and unit-linked, SMEs and health. Each addressing attractive structural growth opportunities where the Group has distinctive capabilities and strong market positions. By combining focused commercial growth with technical discipline, Group-wide capabilities and local execution, Generali is scaling these businesses to drive high-quality, sustainable and increasingly diversified earnings growth.

EXCELLENCE IN GROUP OPERATING MODEL

Generali is increasingly leveraging its Group scale, centralising capabilities and shared platforms across countries to reduce fragmentation, improve productivity and accelerate the deployment of new technologies. This is supported by €1.2-1.3 billion of investment in AI and technology by FY2027 (€0.9 billion already invested since the beginning of the plan), alongside strategic collaborations including with MIT.

AI is increasingly being deployed at scale across the Group, with 16 flagship use cases spanning pricing, underwriting, claims and operations. By FY2026, AI is expected to generate a cumulative run-rate benefit of over €200 million on the Group's operating result, while also improving efficiency, service quality and customer experience.
